Outline of streets on Sixth and Seventh where new paving will soon be put down shows the vast improvement over streets without definition.

Property owners are to be congratulated for their co-operation and forebearance while the City of Cameron did the job right on utility line modernization and grade level.

It is this kind of co-operation that yields the attractive neighborhoods Cameron's trees handsomely shade.

The voice of Apollo, Paul Haney, accepted a plaque each from officers of Texas Press Association in Houston over the weekend for astronauts Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders.

Borman was in Mexico and one of the other two was in California. Reports suggest that debriefing and new assignment quickly follow a rocket shoot, even though the historic moon shot won so much acclaim. Borman is now deputy to astronaut Deke Slayton in astronaut training programs. Slayton has headed the program since he was called off a shot in the Gemeni series because of a minor heart murmur. The least physical limitation can check off an active astronaut.

Haney accepted the large plaques, each inscribed to the astronauts from TPA vice presidents Ellie Hopkins, of Longview, and Georgeo Hawkes, of Arlington, and president Glynn Morris, of Borger. He and his wife flew in Saturday evening from Long Island, N.Y., to appear at the dinner.

He is a former newspaperman, working at the Memphis Commercial-Appeal and the Washington Star among others before joining the NASA space program in 1959. His work as spokesman for Apollo has made his name as familiar as "Shorty" Powers who narrated the Gemini series. Haney is a native of Akron, Ohio.

Going Strong At 83 . . .

No Rocker For 'Mr. Will'

"Under the spreading chestnut tree
the village smithy stands.
A giant of a man was he..."

Remember Longfellow's poem? Cameron's blacksmith, "Mr. Will" Ondrej, doesn't fit that classic picture. He is no giant in size, but his unfailing smile and happy face show there is a giant spirit in this old man who prefers hard work to a rocking chair.

Mr. Will is 83 years old, and still puts in a full day working in his shop on West Batte Street in Dutchtown. His modern welding equipment has replaced the old "heat and beat" way of early-day blacksmiths.

"I've been beating on metal for over 59 years," Mr. Will says. He has several men working in the shop but he still does much of the work himself. There is no letup in the constant stream of tractor plows to be sharpened, or in the wide variety of other work that is the blacksmith's job today. Mrs. Ondrej keeps the books, without the aid of Xerox or IBM.

Mr. Will came to Cameron when he was ten years old from Wesley, near Brenham. "To get out of the cotton patch" he went to work in John Mueck's blacksmith shop located where Wied's Hardware is now. He made $15 a month.

"There were no streets back then," Mr. Will said, "only cow trails in the sand."

Later on he and a partner tried to start a blacksmith shop across the way, where Dutchtown Drug is now. The shop couldn't make a living for them, so Mr. Will worked in a machine shop for some time until he could save enough to try setting up a place of his own.

His present blacksmith shop is in the same place today, and the old forge which used wood and coal, and was hand-fired with a bellows, still remains next to the large, gas-fired forge built by Mr. Will. When he lights the gas, the roar of the forge blocks out any other sounds. He said his brother, who was almost deaf, worked the forge for many years, all day long.

Many a horse was shod by the early-day blacksmith, and farm tools and wagons were repaired for county farmers. Charge for shoeing a horse was $1, including "everything."

Modern blacksmiths do not shoe horses anymore. A horse coming to Mr. Will's shop now would be scared out of his wits by the noise of the forge and crash of the electric trip hammer, and by the hard, blue fire shooting from a welder's torch.

In one side of the shop hundreds of bins and shelves hold the countless items used or sold by Mr. Will. Barrels of chains are on the floor and handles for farm and garden tools hang from overhead beams.

An old-fashioned round iron stove in the middle of the shop provides an ideal place for warming hands or backing up to on a cold day. It, too, is gas-fired, where wood and coal once burned.

When asked if he is planning to retire, Mr. Will smiles widely and says, "Well, every year I say I'm going to sell out, but then I say I'll work just one more year, and then stop, but you see I'm still here. I always figure if I made one more year, I can make another one."

Federal Funds For Schools Approved

FINAL GRANT TO EXCEED FIRST NOTICE

Final approval of $131,647 in federal funds has been received for the Cameron Independent School District 1968-69 year. The money, in part matched by local taxes, is for Title 1, Title 2, Title 3 and Title 5 programs.

D. R. Dodson, Cameron Schools Superintendent, said the final approval was an increase of more than $10,000 over a tentative budget approved at the start of the school year, and about 10 percent under last years federal aid.

Dodson said $126,776 was approved for Title 1 projects; $1,619 for Title 2; $3,059 for Title 3; $193 for Title 5.

Major funding was for salaries, the free lunch program and equipment for an individualized instruction classroom. The Title 1 program employs 24 in the local schools: 5 elementary teachers, 1 audio-visual aids director, and 15 teacher aids and non-teaching personel.

Dodson said $14,000 would be channeled into the school lunch program. He said the school feeds an average of 225 students a day in the free lunch program in addition to providing a minimum breakfast for about 100 children.

An estimated $7,500 has been spent on equipment for the individualized instruction classroom which was added to the local school program in September. The experimental project is being taught this year by Miss Mary Belle Batte. It is a social studies class for seventh grade.

The $1,619 approved under the Title 2 program will be used principally for library books in both the public and parochial schools. Also earmarked for library improvement is $600 from Title 3 to be matched by local money. Additional Title 3 money ($3,059 including the $600 for library, all to be matched locally) will be used for maps, globes, charts and other equipment in the social studies departments, and for industrial arts teaching aids.

Dodson said the money will purchase equipment that will bring the industrial arts department to top standards. Industrial arts classes in Cameron concentrate on woodworking instruction.

Title 5 money, also to be matched locally, will be spent on testing material and guidance material, Dodson said.

24-Home Addition . . . .

New Subdivision Planned

Plans for the first major subdivision to be built in Cameron in more than a decade are moving forward with construction of water and sewer service completed and street work pending.

The 24-house subdivision will be built by Anton Anderle, Cameron business-lumber man.

Construction of the new subdivision is scheduled tentatively to begin after the city completes cutline street work at the site.

The new subdivision north of Cameron will be bounded on the west by North Austin Street, and include a six block area between 24th and 26th streets. North Jefferson and North Polk Streets will be extended through the subdivision and 25th Street will be constructed to divide the six-block area.

Anderle said his plans call for three-bedroom, two-bath houses of brick veneer construction. Each lot will be 110' x 122' and each block of four homes will have a through alley for utility meters and garbage collection.

Anderle will build part of the houses on a speculative basis, with others built to owner's specifications. The houses will all have at least 1200 square feet of floor space, he said. The subdivision will be completely residential.

Financing details are still being worked out, Anderle said, but he expects that both conventional and Federal Housing Administration financing would be available for prospective homeowners. Proposed extension of the city limits would have an effect on the type of financing offered.

Location of the subdivision on the north side of Cameron will place it a convenient distance from the new industrial area.

Cameron's industrial growth has already resulted in a shortage of housing, with future housing demands expected to increase.

Construction of water and sewer service to serve North Cameron and the industrial area began in December when the City started laying about three miles of pipe and constructing auxiliary equipment for the service.

The service lines have been completed along North Austin Street and west on 26th Street. These lines will provide water and sewer service for the new subdivision.

Area Lawmen Go To School

Texas Department of Public Safety will conduct a school in traffic and accident investigation for area police officers starting February 3 in Cameron.

Cameron Police Chief John Shearin said the school will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays at Cameron City Hall. The course will end February 26.

Instructors for the school will be Patrolman Floyd Tippit, Safety Education Officer from Hearne; Patrolman Milton Wright of Cameron, and another officer yet to be named.

Chief Shearin said the school would be open to police officers from Rosebud, Rockdale, Hearne and other Milam area towns.

Material taught in the course will be the same used in Austin by the DPS. Each officer completing the course and passing the exam will be certified by the Department. Chief Shearin said the Texas Legislature is considering making certification a requirement for all Texas law enforcement officers.

Cameron's Police Department is authorized to have four officers. Chief Shearin said he and the two city patrolmen would take the course. He hopes to locate an additional patrolman before the school starts and said the City would consider an inexperienced applicant since he could be trained in the school.

Suicide Ruled In Death Of Gause Man

A 72-year-old man took his life at his home near Gause Tuesday morning, apparently despondent after a long illness.

W. T. Lindsay, long time resident of Gause, shot himself in the head with a 22 rifle about 8 a.m. Tuesday morning. He was found close to his bed by his wife.

Justice of Peace Jim Swanzy ruled suicide in the death.

Sheriff Carl Black said the couple was alone in the small house when the shooting occurred. Lindsay's two sons were at work in Hearne.

Sheriff Black said Lindsay's family told him the dead man had been sick for a long time.

Rockdale Woman Killed; 3 Injured In 1 - Car Wreck

One member of a Rockdale family was killed and three others seriously injured in a one - car accident Sunday afternoon near Lott.

Mrs. Maxine Terry, 40, was killed and her husband, J. D. Terry and two children, John Edward, 17, and Ann, 15, all of Rockdale, were injured when their car apparently left the highway and hit a concrete embankment.

The accident occurred about 4:30 p.m. Sunday three miles north of Lott. Highway Patrolman Charlie Ingram said he was unable to determine who was driving the car.

Terry and the children were taken to a hospital in Marlin then transferred Monday to Scott and White Hospital in Temple, where the children were listed in serious condition. Terry's condition was listed as satisfactory.

Funeral services for Mrs. Terry were pending at Phillips and Luckey Funeral Home in Rockdale.

Rev. Glenn Moehring Will Move To Taft

Rev. Glenn E. Moehring, pastor of Hope Lutheran Church in Buckholts, has accepted a call to serve as pastor of Faith Lutheran Church in Taft.

Rev. Moehring has been pastor of the Buckholts church since 1966. He and his family will move in February.

Friday Last Day For County Taxes

Milam County tax office went into its annual last-week rush as county taxpayers sought to beat the January 31 deadline.

Valter White, county tax collector, said there had been a sharp increase in tax payments and voter registration during the past two weeks.

Voter registration total is between 5,000 and 6,000. Figures are incomplete, with totals from substations at Rockdale and Thorndale still to be counted.

County taxes must be paid by midnight Friday to avoid a penalty. White said the tax office will remain open until midnight Friday for last-minute taxpayers.

New 1969 license plates will go on sale at the tax office Monday. The new plates are treated with aluminum paint under the white to reflect light. The state adopted the new paint for license plates after the Texas Legislature passed a bill introduced by former Rep. Milton Schiller.

Vehicle owners must have last year's registration receipt and car title for registering cars for 1969, White said. License fees will be the same as last year.

MOTHERS MARCH MONDAY NIGHT

Cameron women will hold their Mothers March for the March of Dimes Monday night from 5:30 to 7 p.m. They will be canvassing all of the city. Residents are asked to help workers by turning on their porch lights.

Mothers March captains are Mrs. George Hollas, Mrs. Louis Hollas, Mrs. Frank Matula, Mrs. Joe Zarosky Jr., Mrs. Edward Schiller, Mrs. Bob Ellett, Mrs. Edie Barron, Mrs. Eugene Smitherman, and Mrs. Bob Wells. Mrs. Forrest Sapp is chairman for the March.

Services Here Wednesday For Mrs. V. M. Eanes

Mrs. V. M. Eanes, 84, resident of Cameron and Rockdale died early Tuesday morning in a local nursing home following an extended illness.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 10 a.m. in the chapel of Green's Funeral Home, with Rev. Ben Pierce officiating. Burial was in the Chriesman Cemetery in Burleson County.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Byrd of San Antonio; five sons, J. V. Eanes and John Eanes of Cameron, Joe Eanes, Carroll Eanes and Hope Eanes of Rockdale; three sisters, Mrs. Maud Hill of Caldwell, Mrs. Mattie Gough of San Francisco, Calif., Mrs. Minnie McRae of San Antonio; seven grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

Stolen Safe Found In Roadside Ditch

A small safe taken from the Mobil Oil Co. warehouse in Cameron on January 17 has been recovered, Police Chief John Shearin told The Herald.

The safe was found about five miles east of Temple in a ditch. It had been broken open through the bottom. Contents of the safe were recovered. Don Roddam of Minerva, Mobil Co. agent, said the safe contained stamps and papers but no money.

An adding machine taken the same night has not been recovered.

Parents Reminded To List First Graders

Supt. D. R. Dodson reminded parents of children who will be starting school for the first time in September to obtain a school census form so the child will be registered for the 1969-70 school year.

Forms may be obtained from the superintendent's office at Ben Milam School, or from principals' offices. The form should be filled in and returned to the superintendent's office.

Grass Fire Chars 50 Acre Strip

A 50 acre strip along Little River burned almost out of control several times Monday night as volunteer firemen from Cameron and Rockdale fought the blaze.

The fire on the Julian Baskin property was reported at 6:30 p.m. Fireman Warren McCall said it appeared that the fire started under the Little River Bridge, possibly by someone camping there. Flames 20 to 25 feet high at times threatened the railroad trestle as winds carried the fire along the north side of Little River bank.

Firemen from Cameron along with 6 volunteers from Rockdale fought the blaze for 2 hours with fire brooms and pressure hose. One truck relayed water to a second truck in the field.

Ironically, Herald files show that on the same date in 1968 a 3.73 inch rain had swelled the Little River, covering bottom land along the path that burned Monday night.

Cameron fire trucks also answered a request from police Saturday to wash grease and oil off the highway at 4th and Travis streets. McCall said a clogged grease pit at Brod's Station had caused dangerous driving conditions at the heavily traveled corner.

'NOW SHOWING'

Guide Due Feb. 6

"Now Showing", the new Herald TV section, will appear in The Cameron Herald of February 6. It was scheduled for a pilot issue in this issue.

Technical difficulties have caused the one week delay.

"We regret the delay, but believe Herald readers everywhere will appreciate as good a product as possible the first issue," editor Frank Luecke said.

"Now Showing" is a 16-page, quarter-newspaper-size television section printed with color cover, listings of six Central Texas stations and pictorial information on TV celebrities.

Yoe Varsity 3-2 In District Play

The Cameron Yoemen upped their season record Tuesday night in Yoe gym with a 64-51 victory over the Round Rock Dragons. Yoe basketball season record in District 19-AA is now 3-2.

Friday night at Georgetown the Yoemen downed the Eagles, 46-36 in a district tilt.

The 1968-69 roundball team is being called "the best in years" by Yoemen fans. Tuesday night's game proved the point as spectators watched the scrappy varsity take Round Rock.

Coach Ron Murdock began the season with high hopes for his team of boys, and he hasn't been disappointed. He has consistently praised their competitive spirit and hard work.

Hard work was needed to make up for a lack of height in the Yoe squad. Most of the teams Yoe varsity has competed with this season had tall boys, raising the odds in their favor.

The Yoemen's loss margin has been fairly small, with the 13-point loss to Elgin January 21 the largest so far. District losses included the Elgin game and the opener with Hearne. The Yoemen have defeated Caldwell, Georgetown and Round Rock.

Leading scorer in Tuesday's game was Johnny Steamer with 14. Robert Brashear scored 13, Jerry Richardson 12 and Tommy Terrell 11.

Brashear led Friday scoring with 14 points.

Realities--Past, Future--Superimpose . . . .

Leon Jaworski amplifies proposed Texas legislation for fine public schools in this edition and one previous.

Famous for his work in the American legal system and in the Nurenburg trials, Jaworski is chairman of the Texas Committee on Public School Education, appointed by John Connally.

His point, which some would interpret as a defense, seems to be that the 10-year cost, something like $750 million, would not only place Texas uppermost in the 50 states' public education, but would create disciplined productivity of mind and energy inexpensively by comparison.

We agree.

Texans read of the relative pay status of teachers, the needs of public education in various parts of the state, the condition of present social, mental, cultural and religious institutions.

We anticipate the momentous, but necessary commitment of $10 billion for Texas' water supply by 2020.

We anticipate phenomenal industrial growth which ordains Texas as the next California, its portent of change beyond any certain prediction.

And we hedge in uncertainty when this vehicle, likely the only one which can contain the momentum of an industrial giant, this vehicle of first-class education, is introduced.

The generation of World War II veterans whose millions now manage and teach and lead this country should be good example of what heightened educational advantage produces. Without the GI Bill of post-WW II, the United States would be lacking of these men and women. Academic excellence in arts and sciences may have suffered in that proliferating era, but a lacking in primary and secondary standards of pre-WW II may have contributed.

These are sophisticated times. We must educate man to know both automation and its frustrations. Our public schools skim the surface: to teach a craft, to prep a college student, to round, but not to round out.

If we are to put man in control of a fantastic, manmade environment, we must encourage his creative processes for the perspective modern man lacks.

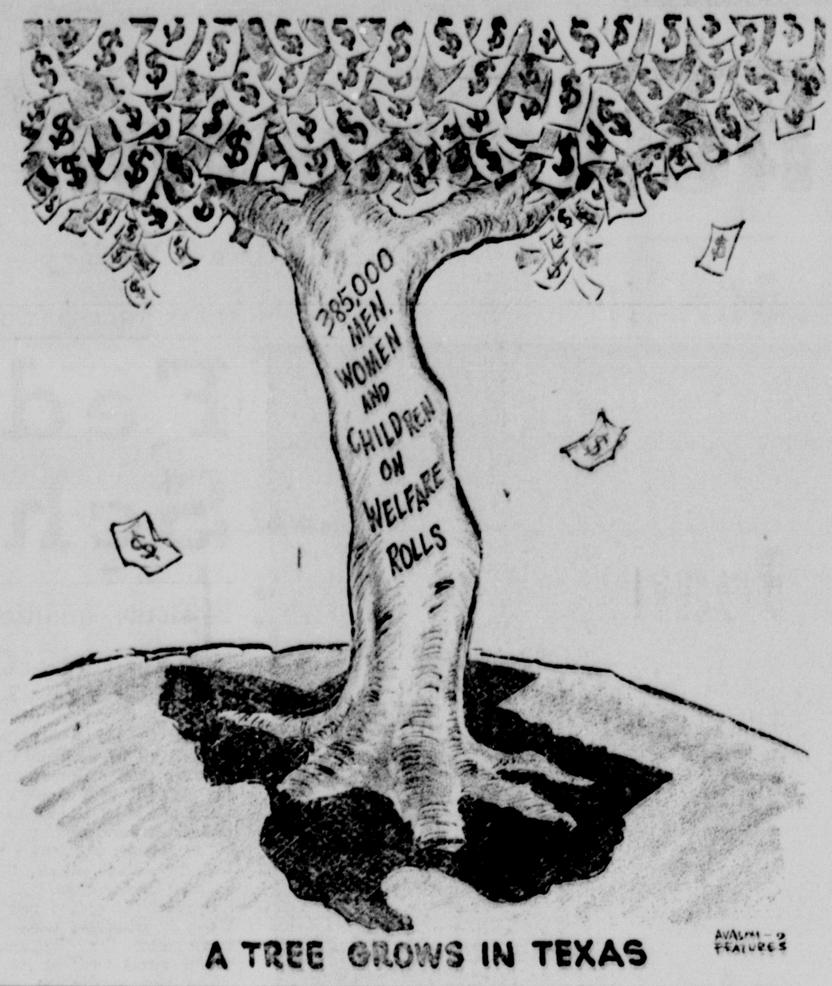
The practicality of waiting, of diluting too much this Committee's proposal may not be practical. If the high school or technical school graduate sees little personal value within our complex scheme of things, he will continue to fragment, to question, to discern futility instead of fulfillment.

It is an enormous order for public schools to assume such responsibility. But public schools are the only vehicle which can attempt this role. They must make the attempt, knowing the frustrations of seeking broad technical and academic excellence among us all.

It is far better to face frustration as it develops than to pay incredible negative taxes for frustration's explosion--both individual and collective--in society.

This Committee asks Texans to face, at one time, the realities of the past and realities of the future which now all but superimpose themselves.

Anything less than real examination of this proposal's merit is derilection of duty for Texans' present practicality and future sanity and sancitity.



OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

I was behind on my newspaper reading, tied up with getting a new farming year on this Johnson grass farm and a new administration in Washington underway both in the same month, so was pleased when I found a copy of The Houston Post lodged against a rear tire on my tractor yesterday, which I pulled off and took to the house and read. The tire was flat so there wasn't any chance of getting any work done that day. If it inflates itself overnight I'll resume work tomorrow.

The paper reported on President Nixon's inaugural address and it read all right to me, except for one thing.

Mr. Nixon said we probably have about all the legislation we can handle for a while, the thing to do is to bring some life to the programs we've already go, and that's mostly right.

However, there's one piece of legislation I wish he'd undertake. I thought of it when I took my 1959 car into town to see why it was using a quart of oil a day, and was told it could be fixed, but while they were at it they said they might as well replace the muffler which broke when the wire I had it tied up with rusted in two, and ought to also put new sleeves in the cylinders, grind the valves, repair the radiator, eliminate a short in the wiring system, and a few other odds and ends that'd come to around $400, more or less, plus parts. I understand. When a mechanic or a doctor goes into a motor or a body he's not always sure what he'll find.

I got to thinking. Look, we've got Social Security, Welfare, Medicare, Medicare, etc, but man's greatest love, his car, has been shamefully neglected. What this country now needs, Mr. Nixon, if a man is to be at peace with himself and realize his full potentialities, in National Car-Care.

Keeping a car going is one of the heaviest burdens a man faces in this life, and the more complicated a car gets the heavier the burden.

What this country needs, before we stop all new legislation, is government-sponsored Chevycare, Fordacare, Ponticare, Mercury - care, Buicare, and, might as well go whole-hog, the Supreme Court would throw it out if we didn't, Chryslercare and Cadicare. We can leave the matter of foreign cars to the next administration.

I will leave the details to Congress, so long as the basic idea is covered and a man will know that when he buys a car he won't be running up bills for his grandchildren, a field which properly belongs to the government anyway.

I like to put first things first, and if it works on cars, we could round out the package by adding tractor-care. Forget bike-care and trike - care. Let the youngsters learn something about the generation gap.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

What Others Say . . .

The Quiet American

Nearly eight years have passed since John F. Kennedy chose Dean Rusk as his secretary of state — eight of the most strenuous years any secretary has borne. Yet though the State Department has been the graveyard of many a reputation, Dean Rusk emerges unscathed—a quiet, firm, persistent American who has been wholly devoted to the welfare of his country.

Rusk now prepares to return to the Rockefeller Foundation, which he served as president from 1952 to 1961. He will become the foundation's first distinguished fellow at the end of the Johnson administration Jan. 20, free to rest, to think, and to put on paper his recollections of a momentous and contentious period of American life. Except for his foundation years, he has been a distinguished and dedicated civil servant since the end of World War II.

Few secretaries of state have lived through as important a period of American history. Typical of his steady hand under pressure was the role he played when the Cuban crisis arose, one settled by President Kennedy with Rusk's sage advice. "We're eyeball to eyeball, and I think the other fellow just blinked," was his deathless comment when the Soviets backed down and a nuclear war was averted. He was also the author of a line that is likely to be remembered. "The eagle in the great seal of the United States has two claws, one bearing arrows, the other an olive branch."

In words as in action Secretary Rusk has been a dedicated man. He supported the United States stand against communist aggression in South Vietnam, and he bore with exemplary patience the rancor that developed when that venture failed to yield quick victory. He was the first secretary to face the new concept of an indefinite war, in which neither side would win, and in which political considerations played a constantly weightier part.

History may amend the conclusion, but at this moment Dean Rusk seems the prototype of a gallant man, the self-effacing servant of the American people. He has borne with courage and good humor a crushing weight in a period of increasingly complex diplomacy. Americans regardless of party and regardless of opinion about the wisdom of our involvement in Vietnam will join in wishing him well in the years to come.

Smith Reveals Aims In First Message To Session

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN

Immediate implementation of the Texas Water Development Board's $10-billion Water Plan (to take water to every part of Texas), lowering the voting age to 18, lifting the constitutional ceiling on state public welfare contributions, and a gradual revision of the State Constitution were some of the surprises Gov. Preston Smith offered the Legislature.

All 181 Legislators had been pacing themselves for the first two weeks of the session, waiting to see what their new governor wanted from them, and now they know his aims. But he has yet to reveal his budget and tax recommendations, which will have tremendous bearing on whether his programs are enacted.

Governor Smith lauded the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System's plan to provide upper-level senior colleges in Midland-Odessa, Corpus Christi, Houston and Dallas and a four-year college in San Antonio, but he did not adopt it specifically. However, he did embrace the board's recommendation for new state medical schools in Houston and Lubbock, a new dental school in San Antonio, and state participation in Baylor University's dental and medical schools.

He called for a state police certification program for prison parolees, an "implied consent" D.W.I. test to cut down on traffic accidents involving alchol, "enlarging" the Parks & Wildlife Commission to obtain better geographical distribution, and raising workmen's compensation benefits from $35 to $45 a week.

Governor Smith endorsed the 1968 State Democratic platform (which had his approval), but he added: "I have read the Texas Republican Platform. I think you will find the two quite similar."

Smith's message to the Legislature left unanswered the question of spending and taxing. He called for economy, but conceded that new taxes may be needed. His recommendations as to what should be spent and where it should come from will follow in another message.

His legislative program was very extensive. Rural legislators who have been getting objections to the proposals for school consolidation make by Gov. John Connally's Committee on Public School Education were glad to hear Smith call that plan impossible to pass. He did agree with the Committee that there should be some school consolidations, but he felt they should be voluntary.

Attracting much interest was the fact that the new governor did not mention in his list of proposed constitutional amendments the one to allow local option liquor-by-the drink. Instead, he merely gave legislators a copy of the Democratic platform which called for a statewide vote on the question.

His message came after a colorful inaugural program which brought thousands to Austin. A "victory dinner" attracted 6,000. As many as 40,000 may have attended the six inaugural balls. More than 100 units took part in the inaugural parade.

When Smith and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes took office, they gave the Capitol the first West Texas team since 1947. West Texans were prominent among those in Austin to cheer for the men from Lubbock and DeLeon.

TUITION HIKE PROPOSED

Finance committee of Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System found tuitions of students must be doubled to help pay the expected $404.2-million biennial operating cost of higher education facilities by 1975-76.

Committee also proposed $165 a year student building use fee to float bonds for a $401-million college construction program. Fee would apply only on six new campuses recommended during the next decade.

Tuition suggested by the committee would be $7 per semester credit hour for Texas residents and $20 per credit hour for non-residents. This would raise an additional $22-million a year. Present tuition rate, unchanged since 1957, is $50 a semester. It is one of the lowest in the nation.

Committee strongly recommended a uniform building system and standardized construction components for new campuses, as well as new procedures to cut down operating costs.

Report will be acted on at the February 10 Coordinating Board meeting, together with a request to merge South Texas College of Law at Houston with Texas A&M University.

DIES SECRETARY OF STATE

Governor Smith's first official appointment was his secretary of state. He selected former Lufkin Sen. Martin Dies Jr., and Dies was immediately confirmed by the Senate.

Smith described Dies, who did not seek reelection in 1966 after eight years in office, as one of the most popular senators in recent history. His main work has been in the areas of retardation in children and parks development.

"I have turned to one of the most able and dedicated men in public life during this era of government," Smith said. "I am sure Senator Dies is destined to become one of the great secretaries of state in Texas History."

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Freshman Rep. Lynn Nabers of Brownwood plans to introduce a proposed constitutional amendment to allow the state to give aid to private colleges and universities.

In the proposal, a committee would determine what it costs to educate the average student at state-supported schools. State then would deduct from that the tuition students pay at state institutions--now $100 per year--and send the rest to the private schools as credit toward the educational costs.

System would be complicated at those private schools which teach religion courses. Some state aid would have to be deducted for that, because of the constitutional provision on separation of church and state.

ETHICS CODE

Rep. Jim Nugent of Kerrville is making another run with a bill he has carried some 10 years. It is designed to improve and strengthen the Code of Ethics for state officials. Every session, Nugent's ethics bill has been passed by the House, but failed in the Senate. He is optimistic this time, since so many senators--and Lieutenant Governor Barnes--are former House members who have voted for the proposal in past sessions.

COURTS SPEAK

A San Antonio Negro got a new trial for robbery because the prosecutor asked a witness if the defendant was a Black Muslim. Court of Criminal Appeals said a mis-trial should have been granted.

State Supreme Court turned down a suit for damages by a man who claimed he developed cancer from handling radioactive material at the nuclear weapons assembly point at the Medina Base.

High court threw out the state's appeal from an Amarillo court finding that the guilt of juvenile offenders must be proved beyond "reasonable doubt" as is the case with adults.

AG OPINIONS

Texas Technological College may create a medical school on the Lubbock campus without passage of implementing legislation, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin said in an opinion requested by Governor Smith.

Martin warned, however, that the legislature, through its control over appropriations of funds, has the power to "accept or reject this method" of creating medical facilities.

In another opinion he also ruled that a school board has the authority to expel a student for violation of a published policy against drug use, after fair hearing. But he said an indictment alone is not grounds for expelling.

REGISTER CARS PROPERLY

Auto registration regulations will be enforced tighter due to computerization, Highway Commission and Department of Public Safety warns.

Highway Department says, that many motorists have cars registered illegally in counties where they do not reside. Others who live in cities show only a post office box number instead of the required residence address.

Computerization also will aid in law enforcement, and reduce the waiting-in-line time to obtain a license. Motorist will get forms to fill out in advance, saving typing time at busy license distributing points.

Employment Up

Manufacturing employment rose a dramatic 44 percent above the recent five-year average during 1968 as industrial development continued at a record pace across Texas.

"A total of 735 new plant locations or major expansions were reported in Texas during the year, compared with 666 the year before", Jim Harwell, Executive Director of the Texas Industrial Commission, announced in a year end report.

However, this was over-shadowed by the rate of employment growth. There were 52,900 new jobs created in manufacturing during the year, 44 percent above the 1962-67 average of 36,725.

While new industry locations kept pace with the previous year, it was in the area of plant expansion that the bulk of the growth was recorded. Plant expansions numbered 444 during the past year, up from 370 in 1967.

The largest growth came in the area of fabricated metals, machinery (except electrical), food and kindred products, chemical and allied products and transportation equipment.

There were 145 new plants located in Texas in these five categories of industry, almost half of the 291 new factories established in the state during the year. These five industry sectors were responsible for an even more significant increase in jobs, with 62 percent of the new manufacturing positions recorded.

There were 35 new plants each in the fabricated metal and machinery areas, 26 in food and kindred products, 25 in chemical and allied products and 24 in transportation equipment.

The largest employment boost, however, came in the area of transportation equipment with jobs for 101,400, an increase of 15,300 during the year. Petroleum refining and related products was second with a boost of 6,960 over the 55,200 maintained in 1967.

The industrial growth, which came on the heels of an increased appropriation for the State Industrial Commission, was not limited to new plants and expansion. Export development also set new records.

Using the Texas International Trade Center at the San Antonio World's Fair as headquarters for 1968 activity, the Industrial Commission made more foreign contacts than ever before and brought about business for Texas manufacturers estimated around $50 million.

The Trade Center, organized by the Export Development Division of the Commission, contained a computer programmed with data on all manufacturers in Texas and the Southwest. A total of 4,000 business men, including representatives of 38 foreign countries, were processed through the Center.

Each was greeted by a multilingual consultant ready to put the visitor in touch with any manufacturer in the region. The computer provided the necessary information,and a national WATS telephone line was available at the Center to facilitate business transactions.

The International Trade Center is only one part of the over-all growth in export development for Texas. Since the division was created within the Commission three years ago, Texas export sales have increased 40 percent.

The value of Texas manufactured products exported this year is estimated at $1.5 billion, compared with $976 million at the program's start in 1965. This represents a three-year boost of $524 million, compared with a $150 million increase for the five years prior to 1965.

Audit May Be Avoided By Neat Tax Return

Odds of having your income tax returns questioned and audited are less when you are neat, exclude large entertainment deductions and don't bunch deductions, says an Extension home management specialist.

Mrs. Doris Myers stresses the importance of neatness on tax returns. This gives the agent confidence in the return's accuracy, she says.

Another cause for questioning is an occasional large item of income or deduction such as a major real estate deal, a sizeable sale of securities, use of income averaging and other extraordinary items.

Bunching miscellaneous deductions and value of donated property may arouse curiosity with examining agents, the specialist at Texas A&M University points out.

She also says that casualty loss claims can make returns liable to audit, especially if the person fails to itemize and explain the loss.

Heavy travel and entertainment deductions remain a pitfall, says Mrs. Myers, and the mixed business-pleasure trips get special attention. To avoid trouble, use form 2106 to cover all travel and entertainment items, she advises.

Be sure to back up all deductions with adequate records and receipts, Mrs. Myers reminds.

Tips From Tippit

By Floyd Tippit, SES

Just plain bad manners can be blamed for many of today's traffic crashes.

One of the most frustrating and selfish things we encounter in life is discourtesy. The most dangerous form of discourtesy is in traffic.

Having tons of metal rushing about in all directions is enough of a hazard without adding the complication of discourtesy and its brother, thoughtlessness.

A sudden discourteous act can disrupt an otherwise orderly flow of traffic and create ann explosive situation in an instant.

Experts tell us that men are the most frequent offenders, probably because they drive more. Shoving other people around is said to stem from a desire to show how tough they are, or what a big shot the driver thinks he is.

Women, on the other hand, tend to develop into discourteous drivers out of lack of consideration or regard for others.

"OH, MY ACHING BACK!"

Many occupations are conducive to backache, such as truck drivers, mailmen, baseball players, draftsmen, plumbers, and many others.

There are twenty-six movable bones (called vertebrae) in the spinal column. A draftsman, for instance, bending over his board, can cramp one or more of these bones out of line. This creates pressure on nerves that carry nerve energy to organs and tissues of the body. When the displaced vertebrae are adjusted, flow of nerve energy is normalized. The cause of the ailment is removed and the pain more often than not disappears.

The Greeks knew about it . . . Hippocrates, the father of healing, said, "In cases of illness look to the spine first." If you are suffering from this or simular conditions you should consult your chiropractor immediately. Call today for an appointment for consultation to see if yours is a chiropractic case.

Form 1040 U.S. Individual ... Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by tax - payers.

Q. - Why did you use color on the 1040 tax form you mailed me?

A. - Color is used to draw attention to the lines on the tax form that give people the most trouble. It is hoped that the number of errors made on tax returns will thereby be reduced.

Last year, one of every nine income tax returns filed contained an error that slowed processing. If the taxpayer was expecting a refund, it was delayed until the error could be corrected.

Two-color forms were sent to about 30 million taxpayers. The balance of the forms mailed to taxpayers and those which will be available at local banks, post offices and IRS offices, are printed in black ink.

Q. - I mailed a check to a charity in December but it was not cashed until this January. Does this mean I can't deduct it on my 1968 return?

A. - You may take the deduction in the year you wrote and mailed the check. This means that a check dated and mailed by you in December 1968 can be deducted on your 1968 return.

Q. - The label on the tax return I received in the mail is wrong. What should I do?

A. - Draw a line through the incorrect part and put in the proper information. Return the corrected label with your return when you file so that your return will be properly identified and the needed correction can be made in your tax account.

Q. - What insurance premiums are deductible as a medical expense?

A. - Premiums paid for policies providing medical care are deductible as a medical expense for taxpayers who itemize. No deduction can be taken for life insurance premiums or for those paid to provide weekly benefits in case of disability.

Don't forget that medical insurance premiums should be handled differently from other medical expenses. Most medical expenses need to be reduced by 3 per cent of the taxpayer's gross income before they can be deducted.

For medical insurance premiums, however, one half of this cost up to a maximum of $150 may be deducted without regard to the 3 per cent rule. This is explained in the 1040 instructions.

Q. - If I file for a refund of taxes withheld on a summer job, will my parents lose their exemption for me? I'm a college student and not married.

A. - No, your parents will not lose you as an exemption, so long as they furnished over half your support. In this situation the same exemption can be claimed on two returns, yours and your parent's.

Q. - When is the next payment due on my maid's Social Security?

A. - The next quarterly return and payment is due January 31 for the calendar quarter ending December 31, 1968.

Also due by January 31 is a statement to your maid covering the total amount of wages paid and Social Security taxes withheld during 1968.

This statement may be made in any form suitable for your maid to keep. It should show your name and address as employer, your maid's name, address and Social Security number, the total amount of wages paid out, the total amount withheld for Social Security tax. The statement should indicate that the employee's tax of 4.4 per cent includes .6 per cent to finance the cost of Hospital Insurance Benefits.

For your convenience, IRS has prepared Form SS-14, that can be used to provide this information to household employees. Copies may be obtained from any IRS office.

Q. - Do you have to report as income insurance compensation for injuries received in an auto accident?

A. - No, damages for injuries suffered in an accident are tax free.

COPSE Head Discusses Financial Part Of Program

(Editor's note: Last week The Herald published the first part of a letter from Leon Jaworski, chairman of the Committee on Public School Education. The letter analyzes controversial aspects of the Committee's report. The following portion of the letter discusses local and state financing of the proposed program for Texas schools.)

LOCAL FINANCIAL SUPPORT

Some of the letters received by Committee members allege that our proposed financial program would have the following results:

1. Rural districts would be forced to support an unreasonable tax burden for the benefit of urban districts.

2. Many farmers and ranchers would suffer because their lands do not produce enough income to pay property taxes based on the sales price which the property would bring.

The Committee was instructed by the Legislature to study the school system in light of the philosophy of the present Foundation School Program. One objective of the present Foundation Program law is to secure an equal, uniform effort on the part of all school districts to support their own schools. Our research shows that the result has been widespread discrimination in the distribution of state school aid. To correct that injustice, the Committee has proposed simply that every district be required to pay its fair share based on the actual value of local property subject to school taxation.

The only exception to the standard of market value as the basis for determining local taxpaying ability would be in the case of agricultural lands from which the owner derives more than half of his income. A State Constitutional Amendment passed in 1967 provides that such lands may be taxed on the basis of their productivity, rather than their market value.

More than 800 Texas school districts now assess property for school tax purposes at less than 20 percent of its value. In most of these districts local property owners do not face tax burdens for other governmental services such as those imposed on most urban taxpayers.

For at least two decades there has been serious discrimination against most urban school districts in Texas in the distribution of state school aid. The discrimination is not limited to districts the size of Dallas and Houston. School systems in towns like Marshall, Center, Mineral Wells, Taylor and Sweetwater have suffered the same inequitable treatment. It is imperative that we now take steps to correct these injustices.

STATE PARTICIPATION

Some statements reported in the newspapers have alleged that the Committee has proposed a four percent state income tax plus an increased sales tax and a four or five hundred percent rise in property taxes. These statements are totally inaccurate.

Research indicates that school enrollments will stabilize while economic activity continues to increase during the next decade. Our long-range plan is designed to take advantage of that happy coincidence. It is quite possible that up to 60 percent of the increased school program costs can be financed from growth of the present tax base without any change in tax rates. However, some additional state tax effort will be required, and the Committee has outlined several alternative approaches.

Some combination of taxes on property, sales, natural resources and or income equal to about four percent of our total income would finance the cost of the proposed program with room to spare. An effort at this level would leave Texas in a favorable competitive position compared to other major states. It would be quite possible to finance the state's share without an enactment of a personal income tax.

In terms of property taxes, the Committee has proposed that all districts make an effort to support the state Foundation Program comparable to that already required in districts like Irving, Castleberry, Dickinson, Hallsville, Beaumont, and many more. It is true that substantial increases would be required in many districts which now make only nominal contributions to the state program, but it will be impossible to finance quality education in Texas unless they are required to pay their fair share.

Almost any impartial observer will agree that the cost of public education in Texas will be much higher in the next ten years. The major question is whether the increase will be absorbed under a scheduled, logical plan producing maximum results for the investment, or will be a continuation of the haphazard growth patterns of the past 20 years.

As Governor Preston Smith told the Midwinter Conference of School Administrators in Austin on January 9, our objective must be simply: "Good schools," and our yardstick must be "What is best for the children." And Governor Smith stated the issues quite clearly:

"The purpose is to create districts of a size that will permit an optimum program, so that some Texas boys and girls will not have to enter college and their life's work at a disadvantage."

"...we are going to have to come to grips with the problem of fair local financial support.....The state government is prepared to equalize opportunity and even enrich opportunity for Texas schools—but not to pick up the check for one at the expense of another. This is something the unwilling and laggard districts need to realize before it is too late for them to participate in a reasonably favorable solution."

Three New Hybrid Corn Varieties Developed By Experiment Station

COLLEGE STATION

Three new yellow hybrid corn varieties have been developed in the corn improvement program of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Texas 42SX, a special cross corn hybrid; Texas 30A, an improved Texas 30; and TAM Dwarf 1, a dwarf corn hybrid, were developed in the corn breeding programs at College Station and Temple.

Texas 42SX is being released to fulfull a demand for a more uniform and higher yielding hybrid. It will be only slightly more variable than a single cross, but not nearly so variable as the double - cross hybrids presently grown. It is a high-yielding hybrid with medium large ears, a red cob and desirable kernel or grain characteristics.

This hybrid possesses a high degree of resistance to downy mildew and is highly tolerant to the Maize Dwarf Mosaic virus. The variety has as good a shelling percentage and is as prolific as the other Texas hybrids. It is particularly adapted to the Blackland Prairie and for production under irrigation.

Because of its resistance to downy mildew and MDM virus, Texas 42SX should be grown in areas where these diseases are prevalent. The corn should also be an excellent hybrid for silage production.

Texas 30A is a high - yielding, yellow, double-cross hybrid adapted to the the Lower Rio Grande Valley, Gulf Coast, Blackland Prairie and the East Texas Timberlands. It produces large ears with large yellow dent-type grain, and will segregate for pink and white cobs.

The hybrid is superior to Texas 30 in yield, standability, prolificacy and resistance to diseases. It is more resistant to ear rots than Texas 30, and has a slightly higher shelling percentage.

TAM Dwarf 1 is the first dwarf-type corn hybrid released by the Experiment Station. It has medium length ears with desirabie grain and ear characteristics, and will segregate for pink and white cobs. The dwarf plants are from five to six feet tall with an ear height of 18 to 24 inches.

It is particularly adapted for production in the Gulf Coast, Blackland Prairie and the Grand Prairie, and is also recommended for those areas where the conventional hybrids grow too tall.

Foundation single crosses used in producing Texas 30A and TAM Dwarf 1 were available to certified seed growers in 1968. Certified seed from all three hybrids will be available to farmers for the 1969 planting season.

ASCS

By Alva E. Sanders

Signup dates for farmers in Milam County who wish to take part in the 1969 feed grain, wheat and cotton programs have been announced. All commodity program signups will be held during the same period—February 3, through March 21. Signup applications indicate the farmer's program intentions, including the extent of his participation in the programs.

Under the feed grain program for 1969, farmers may earn diversion and price-support payments as well as qualify for price-support loans on their corn, barley and grain sorghum crops; feed grain diversion payments will be available to all program participants in 1969.

The wheat program provides diversion payments for reducing acreage below the farm allotment, and price-support loans on all the wheat produced on the farm. It also provides marketing certificates to bring returns up to full parity on the part of the wheat crop allocated for domestic use. No diversion payment is available for cotton.

While the signup period for 1969 commodity programs will extend through several weeks, farmers who wish to take part in the programs are urged to file their applications as soon as they decide on 1969 production plans.

ASCS reminds all wool producers who sold wool or unshorn lambs during the 1968 marketing year that they have until January 31 to file their applications for incentive wool program payments.

Register Vehicles Properly, DPS Urges Motorists

AUSTIN

The chairmen of the Texas Highway Commission and the Texas Public Safety Commission today issued a joint appeal to motor vehicle owners to be sure they have their vehicles registered properly as required by State law.

J. H. Kultgen of Waco, Chairman of the Highway Commission, and Clifton Cassidy Jr. of Dallas, Chairman of the Public Safety Commission, said computerization of all vehicle registrations in the Highway Department, being completed now, will make enforcement of this law by highway patrolmen much swifter.

"Many motorists, knowingly or unknowingly, have their vehicles registered illegally in counties other than where they reside, and others who live in cities show only a Post Office box number instead of their residence address, as required," Kultgen said.

"Through the efforts of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association, many dealers have offered their cooperation in urging vehicle purchasers to register their vehicles in accordance with the law."

Texas Cooperatives To Meet In Dallas

The 17th joint annual cooperative meeting of the Texas Federation of Cooperatives, Texas Cooperative Ginners Association and Houston Bank for Cooperatives will be held in Dallas February 2-4.

Representing Farmers Gin Co. in Buckholts at the meeting will be Edwin F. Fischer, president, and Otto Kelch, manager.

Approximately 1500 farmers from all agriculture areas of the state attend the annual meeting.

The Federation of Cooperatives is a trade association with membership composed of 459 processing, marketing, purchasing and service cooperatives owned and operated by Texas farmers.

The Texas Cooperative Ginners Association includes the 319 farmer-owned cotton gins in Texas that gin 52 percent of cotton produced in the state.

Officers and directors of the three organizations will be elected, and three recipients of Distinguished Service Awards will be announced.

Tree Pruning Methods Told

By J. D. Moore

Pruning plants is an art which can be acquired through learning certain basic principles and the exception to them, and through experience and close observation.

All new shoots begin as buds. Sometimes these buds have been formed and have been dormant for a long time. When a plant is pruned, new shoots are likely to grow from these dormant buds.

The cardinal rule to follow in pruning ornamental plants is the same as that which applies to fruit bearing plants. If you have no good reason for pruning a plant, put the tools away without using them.

The purpose of pruning is to remove unwanted growth as outlined here in order of importance: 1. To remove dead wood or winter killed growth. 2. To balance the amount of top or branch growth on a plant with the amount of root system at the time of transplanting. 3. To remove parts of plants that are injured seriously by diseases or insects. 4. To repair injuries to the plant by weather conditions, such as storms. 5. To rejuvenate older plants by removing older stems and branches to encourage vigorous new young stems to take their place. 6. To maintain or develop a desired size or form, and 7. To produce more or better flowers or fruit.

Although shade trees probably require less pruning than other groups of ornamental plants, at times pruning such trees is necessary. When large trees are grown for shade, they also shade themselves, and sufficient sunlight is necessary for the development of good foliage.

Trees require the removal of branches that interfere with good plant growth and form as well as all dead or diseased limbs. Some pruning is necessary on shade trees for safety and for the health and beauty of the tree.

Corrective pruning sometimes is needed on young trees. This is done when the trees are young to prevent the formation of a weak V - shaped crotches and limbs that might interfere with future growth.

After trees are pruned, a dormant oil spray should be applied. The oil spray cannot be applied while foliage is on the trees.

The purpose of the oil spray is to control "scale" insects. These insects have a protective covering that protects them from most insecticides. Therefore, oil must be used to control them. Most seed houses and insecticide dealers handle the dormant oil. The recommended amount of dormant oil for pecan trees is 4 gallons of a 97 percent oil emulsion to 100 gallons of water. For smaller amounts use 3 to 4 tablespoons of dormant oil to one gallon of water. Fruit trees as well as pecan trees should be sprayed now.

WHAT PRICE SOUP?

Is it more economical to buy convenience soups or to make your own? Both are equal in price if the same ingredients are used. Homemade soups tend to be more expensive because they use more expensive ingredients and a higher proportion of meat.

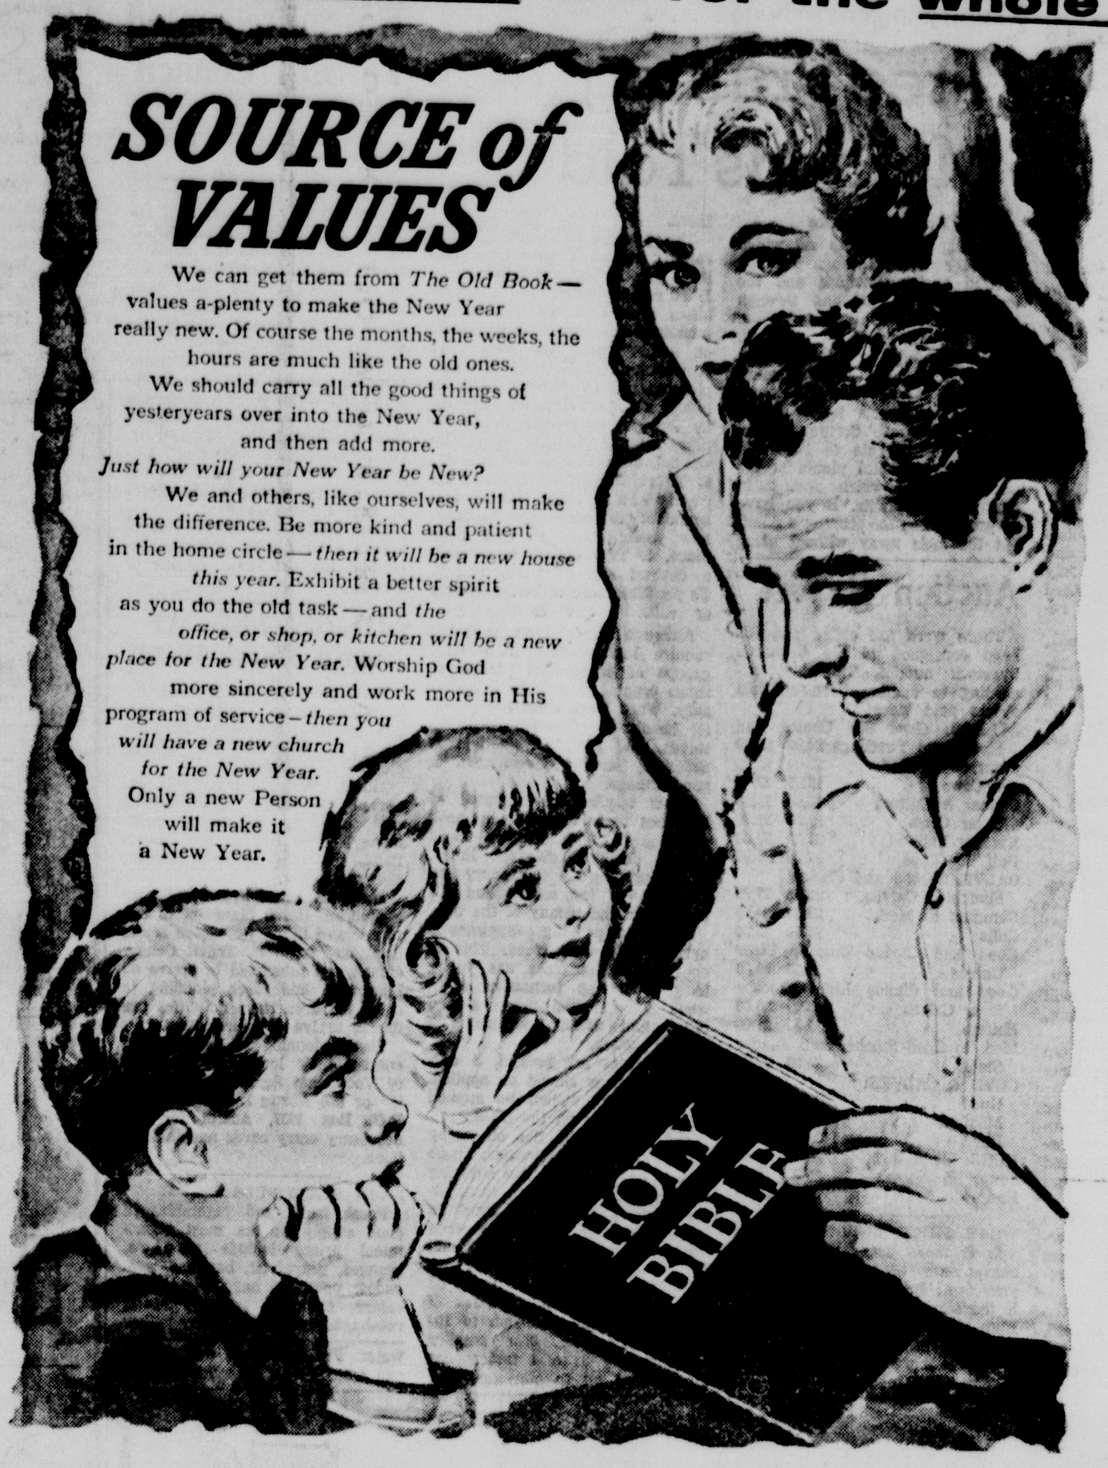
WORSHIP IN CHURCH
and get a spiritual lift for the whole week



SOURCE of VALUES
We can get them from The Old Book—values a-plenty to make the New Year really new. Of course the months, the weeks, the hours are much like the old ones. We should carry all the good things of yesteryears over into the New Year, and then add more.
Just how will your New Year be New?
We and others, like ourselves, will make the difference. Be more kind and patient in the home circle—then it will be a new house this year. Exhibit a better spirit as you do the old task—and the office, or shop, or kitchen will be a new place for the New Year. Worship God more sincerely and work more in His program of service—then you will have a new church for the New Year. Only a new Person will make it a New Year.
